

Susan Dentzer, a leading national expert in healthcare and health policy, is president and chief executive officer of the Network for Excellence in Health Innovation. In her role as president and CEO, Dentzer drives the organization's strategic agenda and priorities, works closely with its members to identify key issues, promotes NEHI's research and policy recommendations, and serves as the organization's spokesperson, providing insightful analyses of the American healthcare system.